OTHER DISCLOSURESOUTLOOK AND STRATEGY

The market bounced strongly in January, ending the month at 8,007 or a 7.25% m/m jump from the year-end 2018 close of 7,466. Key catalyst for the rally was the sharp decline in inflation. The subsequent significant drops in food and fuel prices were a major contributor for inflation to fall to 5.1% in December from November's inflation print of 6%. Sentiment turned upbeat as foreign flows returned to the local equities market with significant buy flows in conglomerates such as SM, ALI and JGS. Consumer names rebounded on expectation of a further slide in inflation. URC gained 16.6% m/m while RRHI was up 10% m/m. The month saw two share placements made by AC and PGOLD. AC ($225M) was offered at P900 per share while PGOLD ($90M) was offered at P45 per share. Both stocks were very well taken up by foreign and local institutional investors. Expect the market to start trading range bound after a strong run-up in January as investors await for 2018's full-year corporate earnings results. Bond yields on the other hand were on a downtrend following the deceleration of inflation and increasingly-dovish comments from the US Fed. The deceleration in inflation has drastically removed pressure for the BSP to raise rates further and could even eventually lead to further cuts in the banks' reserve requirement ratio on deposits.

INVESTMENT POLICY / PROSPECTIVE INVESTMENTS

The Fund may invest in exchange-listed equities and fixed income securities, deposits in the Trustee's bank or in other banks, securities issued or guaranteed by the Philippine Government or the BSP and tradable securities issued by any supranational entity.
